

Geisinger-Marworth, located in Waverly, Pennsylvania, provides inpatient detoxification, rehabilitation and dual diagnosis for clients 18 years and older. Our lengths of stay are variable and our treatment is truly individualized. At Geisinger-Marworth, a foundation of treatment is established for continuing recovery that includes individual, group, family and recreational therapy. All clients are discharged with a full continuing care plan, which enables them to continue with the supports they will need to live healthy lives.

In addition to our general treatment population, we offer a specialized program serving first responders in our Uniformed Professional Program. These individuals present unique challenges when providing chemical dependency and dual diagnosis treatment. The dynamic nature of the Uniformed Services, combined with the inherent circumstances of these professions, potentially expose them to extreme levels of stress, trauma, physical and psychological danger. These unique populations that are diagnosed with chemical dependency require treatment programs that are developed in consideration of these variables and special issues requiring discerning clinical interventions. Geisinger-Marworth understands and responds to the unique elements of these professions. Areas of personal as well as professional focus include, but are not limited to:

- High stress work environment
- Exposure to trauma; post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD)
- Risk of physical danger
- Focus on taking care of others, but not yourself
- High profile status in profession and community
- Special family dynamics
- Back to work implications
- Confidentiality concerns
